The Sunday Paper---An Advance Review.

"How many?

"About six, papa," replied the girl with a roguish twinkle in her eye. "Six! Humph!" and the father's expression was one of disgust.

The daughter laughed outright, "Oh, you ridiculous papa," she exclaimed, "I was only loking."

The girl had arrived in St. Louis the evening before from an Eastern resort where she had been spending the summer, and her father's question had to do with the number of gentlemen who had asked to be allowed to come to this city to visit her. You see, he was a jealous father, and he thought his daughter so charming that all the eligible men on the Atlantic Coast would flock to St. Louis to see her, and he didn't like the prospect.

"I was only joking, papa," insisted the girl, still laughing, for she saw the fun of the affair, if he didn't.

It may be a joke about the St. Louis girl's six beaux, but it is a fact that The Sunday Republic for to-morrow will be the best newspaper magazine yet offered to readers. In the matter of news, excellence of illustration, and timeliness of special features, it will be unequaled,

A whole page will be devoted to answering your political questions. Politics absorbs a great portion of public interest just now, and The Sunday Republic for to-morrow will print a map which will show the political complexion of the States since 1868. If you will look for this page you will find a vast amount of American history condensed and tabulated in an interesting way-worth keep-

The Art Gallery at the Exposition this year will have an unusual interest to lovers of art. If you want to know the character and extent of the wonderful Tissot collection, which will be displayed this year, look for an article on the subject in The Republic's Sunday magazine to-morrow, which is beautifully illustrated by photographs of some of the important paintings.

Harking back to politics for a moment, be sure to look for "What qualifies a voter in the forthcoming election." You will find it on page 2 of the Sunday Republic to-morrow, and it is full of interest to every reader, for who should not know about the qualifications necessary for the performance of one of the highest duties and privileges of citizenship?

The latest photograph of a favorite actress, Miss Julia Marlowe, will be presented in The Sunday Republic to-morrow.

Fun is always desirable. A sheaf from the first crop of stage jokes will be printed in The Republic's magazine section to-morrow.

Beautiful half tones of two famous St. Louis gateways will be found in tomorrow's Sunday Republic.

The poolroom at Madison, Ill., where thousands changed hands in a day, is the subject of an interesting article which will be published in The Republic magnzine to-morrow. There were some picturesques characteristics about this gambling place, and these points will be touched upon by The Republic writer.

Upon one page in The Sunday Republic's magazine to-morrow will be presented four articles of varied and vital interest, The question, "Should consumptives marry?" is answered by distinguished German scientists,

The announcement made by that wizard of electricity, Thomas A. Edison, that he can produce electricity directly from coal has fascinated many imaginations and appealed to the pockets of numbers of manufacturers and business

Another article upon this page which is more than worth while concerns itself with the value of college training for young men who expect to busy themselves for life in things commercial. Training along these lines in college is new. What some St. Louis men think of the innovation will be found worth the reading.

Something about what the beverages of the autumn wil be presented to Republic readers to-morrow. The drinks of various kinds favored by men and women will be interesting.

The page of famous poems, little classics, and biography will be found of unusual interest to-morrow. Missouri, Illinois and Kentucky will find something worth while in the biography of Jo Daviess.

The Republic camera has been turned upon a picturesque portion of this big city. The Italian quarter, in picture and text, will be presented to Republic readers to-morrow.

One of the new fads of card players, bridge whist, will be explained for Sunday Republic readers.

A romance of the possibilities of science, entitled The Finger That Ruled the World, will be printed in The Republic's Sunday magazine to-morrow. Look for it; it is most entertaining.

will be recalled by interested ones if they will read about the 2,000,000 acres of arable land soon to be opened to settlement by the Government. This article and map wil be printed for Sunday Republic readers to-morrow. Frank Carpenter has written an interesting letter about the Macabebes, the

The days of the Oklahoma boom, and the opening of the Cherokee Strip bloodhounds of the Philippines, which will be a feature of The Republic's Sunday magazine. 'A series of pictures, in excellent half tone, describing a trip of twenty-five miles up the Mississippi, will appear in to-morrow's Sunday Republic.

Mr. Archibald Colqohoun's study of the Chinese crisis is worth the reading. In to-morrow's Republic magazine he will consider the fundamental traits of the Chinese people. Read it.

"Blue Eyes Are True" is the title of a love story of Missouri life which will be one of the good things offered to Sunday Republic readers to-morrow. It will be beautifully illustrated in half tone.

Something about the best methods of frightening the pestiferous mosquito way will be discussed in The Republic's magazine,

. . . . Paris ideas in hair dressing are worthy of attention from feminine readers. Our Paris correspondent made some sketches for The Sunday Republic at an Evening garden fete in the gay French city a short time ago. They will be printed to-morrow. The wedding gown has some new features, as it is made in Paris. Look for this picture and explanatory text.

Every reader of The Republic is interested in "black cat man," whose cartoons are so eagerly watched for. In The Sunday Republic to-morrow, he will tell about the elements of a successful cartoon, and trace the development of the cartoon idea from its crude beginning to its completed presentation in your morning paper. You will find this a capital story.

FORTUNES MADE IN PEACHES BY ST. LOUIS COUNTY GROWERS.

Abundant Yield of the Fruit Proves a Veritable Gold Mine-Some of Those Who Have Realized Thousands from Their Orchards.

Never before in the history of St. Louis , Those who are in a position to know say County has the peach crop been as large as it is this year. Judge William F. Pfister of Creve Coeur, an old-time peach grower, who has handled more than 300,600 bushels of the luscious fruit this year, says the yield will be at least 1,000,000 bushels. The price has been extra good, ranging from 75 cents to $1.25 a bushel.

This means that something more than $1,000,000 has been paid out in St. Louis in the last sixty days to the peach growers of the county. And the crop is not yet exhausted, but will continue to yield, says Judge Pfister, for at least two weeks longer. In fact, every morning there may be seen an almost continuous procession of peach wagons on the Telegraph, Manchester, Clayton, Olive Street and St. Charles Rock roads.

pealed to the local union to have Hague expelled, and that Hague appealed to the president of the national body, and that the latter reversed the local verdict. The branch then appealed to the arbitration hoard, and from that to the Committee on Grievances, but in each case the president's position was sustained. Complaint Causes St. Louis Branch

A special dispatch to The Republic from Milwaukee says that the National Association of Stationary Engineers, which is holding a convention in Milwaukee, may be torn asunder because of an alleged insult offered a year and a half ago to a woman of this city by a member of the St. Louis union, local No. 14. The dispatch also says that branch No. 14 has been ousted from the national association and its charter suspended until the branch apologizes to the National President, Herbert E. Stone.

John Hague, who is said to be the man referred to, is an engineer, living at No. 3654 Olive street. The woman in the case is Mrs. Joseph L. Henshaw of No. 365 Morgan Ford road, Hague is in Milwaukee. The husband of Mrs. Henshaw was seen last night, but he had nothing to say, save that he was the Henshaw implicated.

The dispatch states that Henshaw apposition was sustained.

A pamphlet decrying the action taken by the president, hard and he president, hoard and committee has cen circulated among the delegates at the envention in the last few days. The language used was violent, and awakened the anger of the officers of the fational organization. In the convention yesterday it was decided that until the local branch, No. 14, of St. Louis apologized for the publication its charter would be as nulled.

"I am willing to make several wagers," he said to-day. "I stand ready to bet from said to-day. "I stand ready to bet from $1.00 to $15.000. I will make three bets: First, $3,000 to $15,000. I will make three bets; First, that I can name thirteen States that Bryan will carry; second, that I can name thirteen more States that he will carry; and third, that he will carry the remaining nincteen.

"For the first and second bets I want even money-31,000 to $1,000 or $5,000 to $5,000 on each proposition. On the third I want 4 to 1." Mr. Kerr added that he would see that any mount offered was covered at these odds.

A curvery glance at this proposition hows Mr. Kerr apparently in the role of a philanthropist, as it seems assured that Bryan will not carry twenty-six States and be must lose two of the three bets. Therefore the proposition seems an easy one fo ome moneyed man, For the first thicteen States Mr. Kerr

For the first thicteen States Mr. Kerr might select Alabama, Arkansas, Fforada, Georgia, Louisiana, Missouri, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia and Nebraska. In the second thirteen be might place Courado, South Dakota, Idaho, Utah, Ken-tucky, Maryland, Montana, Nevada, North Dakota, Kansas, West Virginia, Wyoming said Washington. This is proceeding on the presumption that ing of the other two, expecting to win $2.60 and lose $1,000, making him, of course, $1,000 to the good. With this combination of States, the first bet would "stand off the third, leaving the second proposition in doubt. doubt.

Mr Kerr, however, would probably make an entirely different slate. He would probably choose for the first thirteen States Montana, Kentucky, North and South Dakota, Kansas, West Virginia, Washington, Illinois, Indiana, Delaware, Wisconsia, Michigan and Oregon.

For the second thirteen he would have California, Connecticut, Iowa, Malne, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Rhod Island, Vermont, Minnesotic and Massachusetts.

ta and Massachusetts. On these two bets he would get eve noncy. Under the terms of the bet h On these two bets he would get ever money. Under the terms of the bet he would then have 4 to 1 on the third prope-sition, that Bryan would carry the remain-ing nineteen States, which would be Ala-bama, Arkan-us, Florida, Georgia, Louis-iana, Missouri, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia, Nebraska, Colorado, Idaho, Utah, Maryland Nevada and Wyoming.

Of this combination the only States that are doubtful would be Maryland and Ne-brasks, and Maryland or Montana, Ken-tucky, Kansas and North or South Dakota. He might thus lose $2,000 on his first two

MISSES' COSTUME.

Stylish Outdoor Dress for a Young

For early fall and school wear Norfolk sults are especially smart. The coatume illustrated is developed in blue and gray cheviot, trimmed with plain blue.

The Jacket waist is mounted on a fitted lining which closes in the center front. The back and fronts are shaped to fit the figure perfectly, and extend below the waist line. The applied pleats graduate in size and are flatly premed. A smooth adjustment is maintained under the arms and over the bips, the fullness from the plaits giving a stylish flare around the lower edge. The garment closes invisibly under the center front plait.

Skitt. 12, 14 and 16 years.

The broad coliar of unique scalloped shaping is edged with a hand of blue cloth. The narrow belt and fancy cuffs are of the same fabric. There is comfortable fullness at the top of the correct two-piece sleeve. This jacket-waist may be worn with a white chemisette, collar and tie, as illustrated, or a fancy shirt waist of contrasting color may accompany the costume. The skirt is shaped with a narrow front gore and wide sides, fitting smooth around the waist and over the hips. An inverted plait is arranged at each side of the center back, where the closing is made. These plaits are flatly pressed, the upper portion of the skirt presenting a plain effect, similar to the habit back models.

The pattern also provides a circular flounce, which may be applied to give additional flare to the lower edge.

Double-faced suiting, serge, covert and Henricetta cloth are appropriate fabrics for this mode, which can be finished in strictly tailor style, with machine stitching or trimmed with braid, ribbon, veivet and cloth bands.
